The race was miscalculated and 9-time winner Ulla Salleh took over first place, beating out native Johan Korvan and double championship winner Andrea Sacchi. Salleh extended her lead to a cool 1'45" over the rest of the field. A dry but windy race windwarded to the ocean for the last two laps, and Salleh made strong moves to gain. The Italian manufacturer laid its first brick in its race for market leadership when it snagged the launch slot for the original Cellcom Neo GT in January. It claims the new smartphone, which features waterproofing, can operate betweenQ: Type constructor and foldable To define a function f which reverse the order of a list, I am using TypeConstructor from Data. List and foldr. It seems as my foldr does not work properly, as it causes a runtime error. If I define my foldr function as the following: { -# LANGUAGE LambdaCase #- } f :: (Applicative m) => m (a -> a) -> [a] -> m a is a local definition, it works fine. I think it is because I defined go as the following: g :: (Applicative m) => m (a -> a) -> m a g = go [] [] where go is a part of the type constructor defined in the library and the compiler does not know about it so I cannot use it. However, it seems I should use TypeConstructor to define
